MEET OUR GOLF INSTRUCTORS

Travis Busch

Head Professional

Travis Busch is the Head Professional at Fairwinds Golf Club and a PGA of Canada member since 2012. He previously worked at the Lloydminster Golf and Curling Centre and a local Golf Resort on Vancouver Island, where he specialized in coaching students of all skill levels, including the Junior Academy Program that attracted local and international students. Travis joined the Fairwinds Golf Club team in 2022 and continues to share his knowledge to help students reach their goals. He also competes at provincial, national, and tour levels, which gives him personal experience to prepare his students for competitive golf. He finds it rewarding to see his students succeed and considers competitive golf the purest form of the game.

Hélène Delisle

Head of Teaching Professional

Hélène, a graduate of the Professional Golf Management program at Collège Laflèche in Trois-Rivières, QC, believes that personalized analysis, preparation, and knowledge are crucial in improving every golfer's game. She has completed all four levels of the PGA of Canada Teaching Certification Program and the National Coaching Certification Program Level I. Hélène has been playing golf tournaments since 1990, and in 2007, she became the only female professional to win on the Vancouver Island Professional Golf Tour with a score of 69 (-2). In addition, she has been playing on the Canadian Women's Tour since 2004, and her dedication to teaching earned her the Teacher of the Year award for the Vancouver Island region in 2015.

Coulton Sheets

Associate Professional

Coulton is the Associate Professional at Fairwinds Golf Club and a PGA of Canada member since early 2022. Before joining Fairwinds, he taught junior lessons for two seasons at The Athabasca Golf and Country Club. Coulton earned his Bachelor of Commerce degree with a Major in Marketing in Finance from MacEwan University. His passion for golf developed after playing competitive golf on the Pepsi Tour and the Gateway Tour in Arizona, Nevada, and California shortly after graduating from high school. Coulton now enjoys teaching and coaching students who share his passion for golf and helping them achieve their goals.

Brett Standerwick

Teaching Professional

Brett, a Class A Professional and PGA of Canada member for 20 years, started at University Golf Club and then moved to Fairwinds Golf Club in 2008. He completed all levels of the PGA of Canada Teaching Certification Program and was named the PGA of BC Apprentice Professional of the Year (Vancouver Island Region) in 2012. With his extensive experience in competitive athletics and the golf industry, Brett can enhance every golfer's game. He emphasizes combining golf skills with physical fitness and movement to promote a healthy lifestyle.
